One Health Initiatives at the University of Saskatchewan & the Important Role for Sociology

“Health is much too important to leave to the health-care professionals.”

Presenters:

Dr. Vikram Misra, Veterinary Microbiology

Dr. Colleen Dell, Sociology

Many health problems, especially those that involve communities, are complex and can only be understood and solved through collaborative efforts by people with expertise in many different disciplines. In recognition of this, in 2010, the University of Saskatchewan identified “One Health: Solutions at the Animal-Human-Environment Interface” as one of the University’s Signature Areas. The goal of the initiative is to incorporate the collaborative approach that is One Health in all areas of the university enterprise.

In the seminar we will try to inform the audience about the many One Health initiatives on campus and how faculty, staff and students can participate.

Dr. Misra will use one of the cases we discuss in our Graduate One Health Certificate to illustrate how all disciplines can contribute to solving a “wicked” One Health problem. Dr. Dell will share specifically how One Health has guided her work in Sociology.

Everyone Welcome! Wed, Nov 2, 2016 · 1:30pm -2:20pm, ARTS 106
